

The Republican.

L. W. GRANT, Publisher.

OCTOBER 11, 1890.

For Congress

WILLIAM H. FORNEY,

Of Calhoun County.

The total rewards offered for Rube Burrows amounted to $7,500.

Dispatches received here state that a rate has been secured on a large lot of material to be shipped hereat once from Washington, D. C. It is presumed that this material is for the $100,000 brick works which are to be put in operation here to manufacture the twenty million brick necessary for the steel plant.

The Bishop of Alabama has called a council to meet in Selma, October 29th, for the purpose of electing an assistant Bishop for this Diocese. This is made necessary by the Bishop's advancing age and the increasing demands of the Diocese for Episcopal services.

There has been great activity in the real estate market here this week—greater than at any period this year. This springs from the confidence of the people in the steel plant and other promised industries since the contract was closed with the steel company.

Mr. O. S. Hubbell, of San Diego, Cal., has located in Jacksonville to participate in the prosperity of the town. He was formerly Secretary of the Coronado Beach Land Company which built the celebrated Coronado hotel at a cost of one million dollars.

The voting place of Ladiga Beat (18) has been changed by the court of county commissioners, from Ladiga to the school house at the Woolf place on the E. & W. R. R. about one mile west of Randall post office. Voters will make a note of this. The place of voting was changed before last election, but owing to the fact that 30 days notice had not been given, the election in August was held at Ladiga. It will henceforth be held at the school house above mentioned.

OXFORD LAKE LINE FAIR.
This fair has been a great success from start to finish, the only drawback being the bad weather which inevitably attends fairs and all great public gatherings. Many people from Jacksonville and this section attended and all pronounce it a most decided success. We trust this fair may become a permanency. It will greatly benefit the county and everybody should take an interest in it. The management will doubtless get out a premium list early next year so that the farmers may compete for prizes in crop production.

Messrs. Privett & Nisbet sold $1,500 worth of real estate at Jacksonville yesterday—Annisston Hot Blast 10th inst.

The Hot Blast, unintentionally we know, often greatly understates the case in speaking of sales and profits made here. Only the day before it said Dr. LeGrand had made $400 on a lot here, when in fact he had made about $550. A former statement of Dr. LeGrand's profits in a deal here was some thousands of dollars under the facts. In the case of Messrs. Privett & Nisbet's sale, reported above, they sold about $5000 worth of property. Other real estate agents made sales also and there was some transactions direct between buyers and sellers. The sales on the day mentioned by the Hot Blast (Thursday) would not fall far short of $20,000 and there has not been a day this week in which the sales have not ranged from $5,000 to $25,000. In fact real estate is fairly humming itself here and a $1500 transaction scarcely attracts notice.

The Vindicator is the title to a new Negro paper published at Anniston. It advocates the election of Jack Logan to Congress and publishes a list of appointments in every county in the District for public speaking. Stevens, Bland and other influential negro Republicans in the District will speak. The Vindicator makes a straight fight on the white Republican machine. Dr. Ewing and other white Republicans, who have hitherto received the solid negro vote of the District, are openly for Butler for Congress and refuse to support the Negro candidate. Under this state of facts the negroes are justified in going back on the white element of their party. It is a pretty mess. The negroes will support Logan. White Republicans like Dr. Ewing and some discontented men, not hitherto classed with the Republican party, will support Butler. The organized Democrats of the District will support Gen. Forney, the gallant old Confederate soldier and standard bearer of the Democratic party. Every Democrat who loves his party ought to take a pride in going to the polls on election day and showing his preference for Forney over the crumbly little demagogue who so underestimates the party fealty of the farmers as to suppose that they will abandon their standard and impair their political standing merely to elevate him to Congress and five thousand dollars a year.

Death of Mrs. G. B. Skelton.
Mrs. G. B. Skelton died suddenly at her home four miles south of Jacksonville Friday night, Oct. 8th, and was buried Sunday morning at Four Mile church near that home. A very large number of friends and relatives attended the funeral from Piedmont, Jacksonville, Weavers, Anniston and all the surrounding country. She was a most excellent christian woman and her death is very greatly deplored throughout the county. Mr. Skelton has been sorely afflicted in the loss of a daughter only a few weeks ago and later the loss of a dearly beloved wife, and the heartfelt sympathy of the people of the county goes out to him and his family in this hour of their sorrow.

M. S. Cann, correspondent of the Birmingham Age-Herald, was in Jacksonville Wednesday noting the progress of things here. He was shown over the town by Gen. Burke, President of the Land Company.

The "straightout" Democrats, as they call themselves, in South Carolina have put out a full State ticket in opposition to Tillman and his State ticket. In Georgia Independents of like character call themselves "Jeffersonian" Democrats.

Men who oppose the nominees of the Democratic party are not much any sort of Democrats. The fact that the Alliance, composed of men belonging to all parties, used the machinery of the order to capture the Democratic conventions and dictate nominations to the Democratic party, does not justify the Independent movements in Georgia and South Carolina. Two wrongs never made a right. All fights should be settled within the party.

RUBE BURROWS.

Romantic and Tragical.

THE CAPTURE AND DARING ATTEMPT AT ESCAPE AND DEATH OF THE NOTED OUTLAW.

DEMOPOLIS, Ala., Oct. 7.—This afternoon at Myrtlewood, in South Marengo, Mr. John McDuffie and others, sent out by the Southern Express Company, captured the real, genuine Rube Burrows.

As reported in the daily papers heretofore, he was working his way back to Lamar county, had passed through Monroe, and had been in Marengo the past few days. Detectives in numbers, assisted by Deputy Sheriffs, have been close behind him in this county since Sunday.

Today McDuffie came upon Rube who had stopped out of the rain in a house. McDuffie arranged with two colored men to go in the house, ostensibly for some other purpose. Burrows had placed his rifle in the corner of the room, but had his revolver on him. The darkies engaged him in conversation and then grabbed him by the hands, preventing him from shooting. He fought the darkies furiously until the others got in and after a desperate struggle they succeeded in conquering and securely tying the great desperado. McDuffie went to Linden jail this afternoon with his famous prisoner, strapped hard and tight in front of him on his horse, his body being across, head on one side and feet on the other. His position was very painful, but he had to be allowed no chances. The great Rube is now in jail in reality. He had only $175 on his person.

Messrs. Agee and Fisher, both superintendents of the Southern Express Company, are in this city, and will go to Linden to pay Reuben a call tonight. Superintendent Agee is greatly enthused over the long sought and hunted Burrows, and is the happiest man in Demopolis tonight. The two colored men showed great courage in taking the first steps towards capturing Rube. They will doubtless be handsomely rewarded. The whole amount of rewards for Burrows is $10,000, of which McDuffie will receive a large share. The whole town here is in excitement over the news of the celebrated capture.

Linden jail will have the honor of having first held the notorious outlaw in chains.

Mr. D. J. Meador sent a special messenger to Superintendents Fisher and Agee last night stating that Rube passed his house yesterday making inquiries as to a ferry near by.

All the detectives came to this place last night for consultation with Messrs. Fisher and Agee. This morning they left the place of Rube's whereabouts.

The Deputy Sheriff of this county Luck, and McDuffie showed especial determination in the hunt for Rube. There were originally five men in the Burrows case and all have now been arrested. No man is now at large who can say that he ever robbed a Southern Express train. Superintendents Fisher and Agee informed me that about $10,000 have been spent in the capture of Rube and his gang. Burrows does not hesitate to acknowledge his name and identity.

He will be brought here tomorrow. Messrs. McDuffie, J. G. Carter and two colored men captured Rube with out a drop of blood being spilt.

LATER ACCOUNT.
Demopolis, Ala., October 8.—A telephone message from Linden, gives full particulars of the killing of Burrows.

When captured yesterday one pistol was found on him and when asked if he did not have another, he said he had sold his other one.

It seems his captors never once opened or examined his leather satchel and this morning when he said he had some crackers in it and wanted to get some to eat McDuffie handed him the satchel without hesitation. He drew the pistols so quickly his guards were taken by surprise and untied his feet and hands without a word. It was not daylight then and he could have escaped easily if he had not gone in search of Carter to get his money. Carter was in his room but had not retired. Burrows got the drop and demanded the return of his money. As soon as he saw Carter reach for his pistol he fired. The ball struck Carter in the breast and it passed through his lung just above the heart, inflicting a wound which is supposed to be fatal. Carter fired as quickly as possible and shot Burrows through the body, and Burrows then turned and shot John Marshall, the negro who had assisted in his capture and was forced to guide him to Carter's room. Burrows then turned and ran across the street with Carter in pursuit.

Several more shots were fired but without effect. As Burrows reached the opposite side of the street he sunk to the ground at the corner of the court house and died in a few minutes without speaking a word. Carter fell in the middle of the street about the same time Burrows fell. The negro had been shot down in the room and is dangerously wounded. McDuffie, the white man who had been guarding Burrows with the negro marshal, was securely locked in the sheriff's office in the jail and could not get out to take any hand in the shooting. An inquest is being held this morning on the body of Burrows.

Superintendents Agee and Fisher, of the Express Company, left here at 5 o'clock this morning for Linden, intending to bring Burrows' body back with them. They knew nothing of his death until they arrived there. Marshall Monner, of Demopolis, says Agee and Fisher told him they intended taking Burrows out of the State, but he declines to say where they intended taking him for trial.

It is said to Memphis. None of the express company's or railroad detectives were present at the capture of Burrows, and knew nothing about it until he was in jail. He was captured by J. C. Carter, the man who shot him. John McDuffie and two negroes. John Marshall, the negro shot, was one of the captors. Carter keeps a country store eight miles south of Linden. Yesterday Burrows stopped at his store and bought some coffee. Carter recognized him from printed descriptions and securing the assistance of McDuffie and the two negroes, was soon in pursuit, and they found him in a negro cabin where he had stopped to rest and secured him without a struggle. The identity of the dead man seems to be fully established so say the officers of the express company. There is no doubt about the man being the great and only Rube. The body will be brought here this afternoon or tonight, but it is not yet known what final disposition will be made of it.

A GRAND OLD MAN.

Bishop and Mrs. Wilmer Celebrate Their Golden Wedding.

Every man, woman and child in Alabama will read with pleasure the following just tribute to Bishop Wilmer from the Birmingham News:

Today he celebrates, with the good wife, their Golden Wedding. Yesterday his letter to the clergy and laity of the Diocese of Alabama announced his failing health and called a Council of the Church to name and consecrate an assistant Bishop to assist him in God's work.

The Rt. Rev. Richard H. Wilmer, Bishop of Alabama, is a grand old man.

His children, members of the Episcopal Church, venerate their holy father, and all men who admire honesty, patriotism, devotion to duty, high thoughts, pure acts, a sanctified life and a blessed harvest for a patient work, love him.

His life has been simple and sublime. His teachings, by word and deed, have been catholic; temperance and charity has he symbolized; "love your neighbor as yourself" has been the daily lesson of his long career; and when he shall be gathered to his Father, the world will be happier, better and purer for his presence here below.

Episcopalians may have a special joy in the grand old man, but he is too big in heart and brain, in precept and example, for them to have a monopoly.

Bishop Wilmer belongs to all the South; his name and fame are among the most precious heritages of the people.

Bright shines the sun on his Golden Wedding day; sweet is the incense of a universal sympathy; profound is the public and private hope that he and his help-mate may journey many years together yet, and that, as the shadows lengthen, more radiant may become the closing day.

JACKSONVILLE REPUBLICAN.

"ETERNAL VIGILANCE IS THE PRICE OF LIBERTY."

ESTABLISHED 1837.

JACKSONVILLE, CALHOUN COUNTY, ALA., SATURDAY, OCT. 18, 1890.

VOLUME 54.

The man who supposes that the farmers of Calhoun county are any less Democrats because they are Alliance men and who bases his hopes of office on their abandonment of the Democratic party to support him, will be undeceived when the election returns come in. The farmers are the very backbone of the Democracy of the county and as constant to their political principles as the needle to the pole. We may differ with some of them as to the measure called the sub-treasury bill, but it is an honest difference, and this is a free country in which every man is entitled to his opinion on public measures. We think none the less of a man because he believes that measure a good thing for the farmers, and we trust there is not a farmer in the county who thinks less of this paper because it honestly believes the measure to be hurtful to the best interests of the farmer. But when it comes to a straight and honest support of the Democratic party, there is and can be no difference between us. We both believe in White Supremacy and the rule of intelligence and virtue and both equally regard with distrust any white man who will endanger the success of the Democratic party by running against its nominee when the Republicans are in the field giving battle for negro supremacy.

AN ALLIANCE DEMOCRAT.

He Refuses to Oppose the Regular Nominee.

STURGEON, La., Oct. 14.—T. T. Guidé, State lecturer of the farmers' alliance, recently nominated for Congress in opposition to Mr. Blanchard, the Democratic nominee in the Fourth District, has written a letter to the "Caucasian" declining to run. He says: "We must keep within lines now drawn, beyond which it would be unsafe to venture." The fight in this district will be made inside the party.

Now For the Show.

All ready. The Fair Grounds this week present an animated appearance. The great Alliance day is fixed for Wednesday the 22nd and the Ballou Bridal Tour through the clouds for Thursday the 23rd, on which day there will be a tremendous large crowd present. The editors and publishers have a treat in store—a part of the main Exposition building has been set apart provided with desks, easy chairs, stationery and all the comforts enjoyable for their special use. The editors will be at the fair in full force. An aerial carriage is another feature, just obtained at a great cost with trapeze performances in mid air.

Insurance Against Disease.

In certain instances there have arrangements made between a physician and the head of a family that a fixed amount should be paid for each day the various members of the family continued in good health. But should sickness enter the household, the physician's usual stipend was discontinued. Such an agreement is founded on common sense, for we don't want to be made well, we want to be kept well. There is a great deal of unnecessary sickness resulting from a want of careful attention to bodily requirements. Keep the blood pure, keep the functional habits of the body regular, counteract the effects of exposure by always having a bottle of Dr. John Bull's Sarsaparilla in the household and using it in anticipation of an attack of illness or when the very first symptoms are manifest. Disease will not trouble you if you will heed this good advice. It is an excellent preventive of disease and decay, as well as a safe cure. —Marion Banner.

Somebody has said that "a miss is as good as a mile," and the New York Herald says, "yes, and a good deal better. You can't hug a mile." You can't, eh? A certain young man in this town who was out driving the other day with his best girl hugged her eight miles, two-thirds of a dozen.

The Unequal Tariff.

The Courier-Journal, always relentless in its war on the unjust tariff, thus points out the favoritism of the McKinley law for the rich and its oppression of the poor: The poor man will be pleased to learn that the new tariff bill reduces the duty on sealskin saques from 30 to 20 per cent. Having fortified himself with this information he will hear with equanimity, doubtless, that the tax on cotton corduroy has been raised from 25 to 75 per cent., on woens used by workmen from 30 to 110 per cent., and on cheap black alpaca from 60 to 100 per cent. Should he experience any emotion of dissatisfaction, however, he will be at once reconciled when he learned that there has been no advance whatever on black silk and silk velvet, though the tax on cotton velvet has been doubled. The lot of the poor man will be harder, but he has the proud satisfaction of knowing that his rich neighbors will not have their incomes materially diminished by the revised tariff.

The bill was made for the express benefit of the rich manufacturers and trusts, and that is why it grinds the poor.

It couldn't be for the benefit of both the trusts and the people, because the interests of the two are antagonistic.

It is altogether about the meanest measure that ever passed Congress. It not only discriminates between classes, but is outrageously sectional. There is enough in this new tariff law alone to forever damn the Republican party, to say nothing of many other iniquities of the party.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

"Don't Give up the Ship."

Don't surrender, although the fight be long and bitter, and results thus far but dismal failures. Old Bad Blood may yet be conquered and disease driven from the citadel of life. You have not used the proper remedy, or long ago you would have felt a change. You have tried this and that, a hundred bottles of this specific and fifty bottles of that sarsaparilla, and feel you might as well have used so much rain water for all the good effect they had. Why have you not tried B. B. B., Botanic Blood Balm, made in Atlanta, Ga.? Because it isn't advertised so conspicuously as other remedies? Well, that's a poor reason. The greatest humbug can afford the largest advertisements. As for B. B. B., try it, and if six bottles don't do you more good than all the other blood medicine you have ever taken, call it a humbug, a name that has never yet been applied to it by any one.

Walter Bridges, Athens, Tenn., writes: "For six years I had been afflicted with running sores and an enlargement of the bone in my leg. I tried everything I heard of without any permanent benefit until Botanic Blood Balm was recommended to me. After using six bottles the sores healed, and I am now in better health than I have ever been. I send this testimonial unsolicited, because I want others to be benefited."

An Open Confession.

As a man who regards public office as a private trust, Postmaster General Wanamaker is, perhaps, unexcelled. We have already referred to his tinware scoop in Philadelphia, but to further show how he profited by the information obtained as a cabinet officer, we give the following paragraphs from his advertisement of September 30th:

"Tinware is advancing in cost, and very soon the manufacturers will have their own way, and you and we will have to pay very much more."

In view of this state of things we made some time since a large purchase of kitchen tinware at what was a low price then, and would be far lower now, in the face of two advances in makers' price lists. This lot goes on sale today at prices that will not be seen again for a long time to come. You will find it in the main aisle, basement. Ample arrangements are made for correct and prompt delivery."

If anything was needed to show that the new tariff bill is a blow to the struggling masses and downright robbery of the poor, such confessions as Mr. Wanamaker makes in this advertisement would furnish ample evidence.—Atlanta Constitution.

JUST AN INCIDENT.

From the blue and splendid skies a perfect moon looked down. The river was one long track of light, and the varied scenery on the banks shone in resplendent beauty as the noisy steamer kept her bright course from Albany to New York.

I was a passenger in the steerage. The night was cold and there were, perhaps, fifty passengers, all told. We were all huddled around the heaters. Men of all nationalities were represented there—the Jew, the German, the Greek, the Turk, the Frenchman, and at least twenty Italian laborers. It was a perfect Babel of tongues.

"A rough crowd," I thought, and so they proved themselves to be before we reached New York.

I was wedged in on the long bench before the heaters between a couple of musty, dusty Italians, who incessantly puffed the vile smoke from their chulk pipes into my face and deafened me with their ceaseless chatter. Like so many parrots they seemed all screaming at once.

I had been admiring the scenery and looking out upon the perfect night from the open side of the steamer, and the cold had caused me to seek the warmth of the heaters. But my surroundings were unbearable and I soon resigned my seat.

As I arose I was attracted by a cry of pain, and then I saw a burly Italian, who was trying to make his way to the heaters, stop and administer a kick to the prostrate form of a boy, that lay wrapped in a course blanket.

"What did you do that for?" cried an old man, who was standing near. "Don't you see the boy is sick and can't get out of your way?"

The Italian muttered something which I could not understand; his friends laughed and gabbled more violently than ever, while the boy, who lay at their feet, groaned in pain.

"A friend of yours?" I asked, moving near the old man, and pointing at the prostrate form.

"My son, sir," and then in a trembling voice: "He's dying of consumption, and I'm taking him to New York. I want to put him in the hospital there."

"Who's that talking to you, father?"

The sick boy boy raised himself to a sitting posture and looked earnestly at me.

"It's a gentleman, Leonard," said the old man, bending down and tenderly supporting him, "a gentleman who is going to New York."

"He ain't like them other fellows," said the boy, who did not seem to be more than seventeen—"his voice is softer and kinder."

"There, Leonard," said the old man, gently, as the boy was attacked with a fit of coughing, "lie down now; you can rest your head in my lap if you will."

How I pitied that poor, pale face, as it lay there, pillowed upon the old man's breast.

"Father, I want you to sing that song you learned at the mission; the song they sang for you when you came home."

The old man's lip quivered, and the tears trickled down his cheek as he said:

"You couldn't hear it, Leonard, there's too much noise." Then the old man turned to me and said, by way of explanation: "I used to be a great singer; I used to drink and lie down in the gutter—I was no account at all!"

He stopped, apparently overcome by emotion. His tears were flowing freely.

"I was no account," he repeated, "and so I went away and left my wife and this poor boy to battle for themselves. But one night, when I was wandering, homeless and friendless, on the streets of Albany, a sweet woman, standing in the door of a little mission chapel, from which the light streamed brightly, asked me to come in. The night, in the streets was cold; within there was light and warmth, and so I entered."

"There were others there, just like myself—poor, homeless, ruined fellows, most of them in rags. Well, they sang a hymn there that night which touched my heart. I went away from that meeting a changed man—I went home to my wife and child, and, thank God! I've tried to do my duty by them ever since."

"Sing the song for him, father," said the boy, "if we can hear you talking we can hear you sing."

And with wet eyes he sang:

Are you coming home, ye lost ones,
Whom Jesus died to win;
All footsore, lame and weary,
Your garments stained with sin;
Do you seek the blood of Jesus
To wash your garments white?
Will you trust His precious promise,
Are you coming home tonight?

There were three men on the boat whom we had not noticed. They drew near to us as the old man sang, and, much to my surprise, they joined in the chorus and sang it through with feeling—

Are you coming home tonight?
Are you coming home tonight?
To your loving, Heavenly Father,
Are you coming home tonight?

The boy had fallen asleep ere the hymn was finished. A scream from the whistle, a ringing of bells, and we knew that the steamer had reached New York.

"Wake up, my son," said the old man, lifting the boy's emaciated form in his arms. "We're in New York at last!"

Yes, we were in New York—we whose lives would soon drift into the strife and tumult of the great city; but not that boy upon the old man's breast. He did not move, he did not answer when his name was called; he was far away, in that other and fairer city, where sorrow and pain would trouble him no more.

He had gone home during the singing of the hymn. F. L. STANTON.

Will Destroy Protection.

This is the forcible way in which Col. Alex. McClure expresses himself in regard to the McKinley tariff bill:

The day that dates the operation of the tariff law of 1890 will date the beginning of the end of protection in the United States, unless the sincere friends of protection to labor shall speedily rescue the policy from the insane greed that has belimed it into hideous deformity. The people of this country are in favor of the protection of the wages of labor in our general productive industries; but they are not in favor of the protection of protection to systematic and pitiless oppression of the very labor it professes to protect. If the McKinley tariff law is the standard of protection, then the people of this country are overwhelmingly against protection, and they will as surely overthrow it as they overthrow the even more tolerable labor bondage of the Southern slave.

There is not a manufacturer in this great industrial city, outside of the lawless robbery of trusts and combines, who believed the McKinley bill a wise protection measure; there is not a Representative in Congress from this city who does not know that it is a deadly blow to some of our important industries, and a help to none; there is not an intelligent business man in Philadelphia, however sincerely devoted to protection, who does not know that the wanton taxes imposed must seriously disturb and soon convulse the commerce, trade and industry of the country; and there is not a workman in this home of skilled labor who will not soon know that he is simply the victim of taxes bred by the greed of monopoly and without the hope of increased wages for labor.

This is the idea the Age-Herald has frequently expressed in regard to the McKinley measure—it will destroy protection and is more to be deplored by those who favor an adequate safeguard for American industries than by those who long for the establishment of free trade or a purely revenue tariff.

It is a grasping, greedy measure, designed for barefaced robbery, and will teach the people to hate protection because it masquerades in that guise, and his promoters have attempted to justify it under that name.

The protected manufacturers who have encouraged and abetted the passage of this measure have been very much in their own light.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

What a Leading Physician Says:

Dr. R. S. Gordon, a leading physician of Mt. Carmel, Ill., writes the following under date March 10, 1890:

"I cheerfully recommend Swift's Specific S. S. S. as a tonic and general health restorer, also in case of Blood Poison it always gives satisfaction."

Years of Suffering.

"For years I have been troubled with a blood taint that has baffled the skill of the best physicians of Ohio and Indiana, the disease finally effected my eyes to such an extent that I was almost blind. I was then induced to take a course of Swift's Specific S. S. S. and am thankful to say that after taking a few bottles I was entirely cured. My eyesight is entirely restored, and my general health is better than it has been for years, and there is no trace of the disease left. I consider S. S. S. the best blood purifier and general health tonic to-day on the market."

The Tariff and the Workingman.

Newspapers in business centers have been interviewing manufacturers and wholesale and retail dealers on the probable effects of the new tariff bill, and the testimony of a majority of the business men of the country is overwhelmingly against it. The New York World and Sun present pages of facts as to its present and future influence upon trade, and in nearly every instance it is shown that the bill is oppressive and a growing burden on the working classes.

Republicans who supported the bill must see that it is already having an unfavorable effect upon the industrial interests of the country. In theory, sustained by persuasive argument and eloquent plea, it was one thing; in practice, standing upon its merits alone, it is another—a reality which confronts the people and robs them of their rights.

Now that they must meet the issue squarely and give a reason for the faith that is in them, Republican newspapers are advising the people to exercise patience and fortitude and make an effort to adapt themselves to the changed conditions, and to "hope for the best." Jay Gould comes forward and practically admits that the outlook is gloomy, but pats the people on the back and says the bill will be all right when it is better understood. They see that some apology is necessary, but in the face of the facts their weak subterfuges will not deceive the public.

The increase in prices which will result from this bill will be seriously felt by the wage earners of this country, and people whose incomes are small will suffer to a great extent. The poor man can now prepare to pay 5 per cent. more for his cotton and woolen goods than he paid before this bill became a law; knit goods and hosiery will be from 5 to 10 per cent. higher than they were last year; corsets will cost more; there will probably be an advance of at least 15 per cent. in linens; shoes will be dearer; crockery and glassware will be higher; articles of stationery, such as blank books, paper, etc., will be increased from 10 per cent. to 15 per cent.; canned goods will go up; the fruit business will be injured and the consumer will suffer. In fact, nearly every article in common use, such as may be of daily use to the poor man, will advance in price. The only thing that will probably remain unchanged is his salary, and of this the tariff seeks to rob him.

We have not cited the hundredth part of the articles for which the consumer will be double-taxed; the list is too lengthy for even condensed review, but the few samples given will show the general tendency of the bill. As to the bill's effect upon wages, we quote the following from an interview with Mr. David A. Wells in the New York World:

The effect of the McKinley tariff on wages may be briefly deduced from the following general principles: Wages are labor's share of product, and in the long run can be paid from no other source. If product is large, wages will rule high; if small, they must of necessity rule low. In the staple products of machinery, or in manufactured goods, the cost of the crude materials represents generally from one-half to three-quarters the entire cost of the finished product. If the manufacturer has to pay 40 per cent. for materials, he has 60 per cent. left for wages, profits, interests and incidentals, but if he pays 60 per cent he has but 40 per cent. left, and this last result is exactly what the McKinley tariff tends to effect. If the manufacturer, to avoid reduction of wages, raises the price of his product, such increase of price will be paid by the consumers, who are mainly the so-called working classes; so that the ultimate results, so far as they are concerned, will be equivalent to putting money into one pocket and taking a corresponding amount out of the other.

Take any view of it that you will, and it will be evident that the tariff is mainly a tax on the consumer—a heavy burden on the working classes. It is to these facts that we would direct particular attention. The republican party claims to be the friend of the workingman. It will be remembered that during the Harrison campaign they promised that he should be protected; that his wages would be increased and his interests fostered. But as soon as the party was restored to power its leaders began the work which has resulted in a tariff which oppresses and grinds him down, robbing him of whatever wages he may get. The pledges of the republican party to the workingmen of the country are unredempted. With the reins of power in their grasp the leaders of this party became reckless of the common interests of the country. It was the money power that they wished to control, and their legislation has been in its favor. Let the poor men of this country, and the working classes generally, remember this and avenged the wrong with their votes.—Atlanta Constitution.

The Issue of Mr. Reed's Congress.

Springfield Republican. It is not merely with a sigh of relief that the thoughtful citizen will note the end of the first session of the 51st Congress rather it will be with a much anxious contemplation. No other session ever projected questions of greater moment or disclosed tendencies apparently more dangerous. All have marked the extraordinary partisan purposes of the majority as it took possession of the executive and both branches of the legislative departments—the intention to pay off campaign debts in the subsidizing of large combinations of capital through the levying of higher taxes; to buy the favor of special classes in direct largesses from the public treasury; to trench itself in power in the Senate for 10 years to come through the admission of new Republican States; and bringing the election of congressmen under the control of the federal authorities—and all apparently at the bidding or in the interest of a money power everywhere corroding the morals of the people's servants and seeking exemption from all restriction and accountability in the corruption of the state.

But what was all this to the methods employed to accomplish these purposes? Here was a government depending for stability on popular respect for established law and precedent and on regular and well-considered ways of amendment and reform. But a "strong man" was made speaker of the House, who at once, while the body was purposely proceeding without rules, overruled the precedents of a century and established in this revolutionary manner methods which Mr. Blaine, Gen. Hawley, Gen. Garfield and Reed himself had at a previous time pronounced revolutionary. Here was a legislative agent of free government whose whole value depend upon full and frank discussion of public measures. But then for the first time in our history the proposition was set up and acted on, that legislation without deliberation was the function of Congress, and measures creating new States, appropriating millions for pensions, debasing the currency for a special interest, putting the taxing power in the hands of the President and feeding special interests with tariffs and bounties, were rushed through with scarcely any consideration outside of the secret councils of the majority.

Here again was a theory as old as popular government, that minorities have rights as well as majorities, and all the machinery of our government has been devised to protect the minority from the course of an arbitrary majority. But in the session just closed it has been held that the majority has unlimited power to rule; and the mere registration by the House of the decrees of the secret councils of the majority, without open debate, has been pronounced, in practice as well as theory the purest and best form of government by majority.

Here, in short, are the chief safeguards by which a free government has sought to protect itself from partisan passion and factional tyranny; and the way has been paved for their overthrow. This Congress has stamped the denial of their necessity or justice on the records of the government.

More than this we find a disposition in the dominant party, and it may extend further, to applaud the person chiefly instrumental in working these great results. He is hailed as the man of the hour and arrangements are planned to make his campaign tour a triumphal march. Nor is it a thoughtless rabble with shouts. Very many others are honestly inclined to join. Why? They are wearied with the incessant bickering and maneuverings of parties in Congress; business is distracted the public business delayed and all is in a continuous turmoil; and here was a man intelligent enough to see the situation and strong enough to break down the checks and balances by which the absolute sway of party is restricted.

Is there not a widespread feeling of that sort? And this more than all else is what will alarm the thoughtful man. Washington just feared this. "The disorders and miseries which result from party strife gradually incline the minds of men to seek security and repose in the absolute power of an individual." And the warning he gave seems peculiarly apt in this crisis. "And soon after the chief of some prevailing faction turns this disposition to the purpose of his own elevation on the ruins of public liberty."

There is no call, perhaps to raise strange alarms or indulge in gloomy forebodings. But the republic approaches a grave crisis when men's minds are inclined to shout approval of a "strong man" because he has done more in one year to make of Congress a mere register of the decrees of the secret caucus of the majority and to break down all those safeguards of popular government so essential to its preservation than has been done in all our previous history.

Still more threatening is it when all this is done in the interests of 'arrogant wealth,' which has been the greatest enemy of popular government in the past, and whose insidious and corrupting intrusion into the very heart of our own society and government is inviting so much discontent and disorder, and vexing us with greater problems than we have ever faced before.

We need to be well warned. It was the monarchy, said Fisher Ames, which sails gracefully and swiftly like a ship to the perplexing of none; but in time it strikes a rock and sinks. The republic is a raft; it sometimes never seems to sail at all and everybody's feet are always wet; but when the rock is struck it does not sink. The "business methods" of Mr. Reed's dictatorship may invite swift sailing to the momentary pleasure of the thoughtless but their cost in the end will be the public liberty.

Dime Novel Heroes.

One of Mrs. Sanders' Murderers Confesses.

Washington, Pa., Oct. 14.—Mrs. Elizabeth Sanders, the toll-gate keeper and postmistress, who was attacked by masked ruffians at the door of her house in Toledo, two miles from this place, on Friday night, and shot in the abdomen, is dead.

She passed away without apparent pain at 7:30 this evening. Present District Attorney W. S. Parker, D. M. Donohue and others, who had obtained a few moments previous to her death a statement concerning the identity of her assailants. Mr. Parker refused to make public the substance of this statement, but said that the commonwealth had sufficient evidence to justify the conclusion that the three persons now under arrest here were the perpetrators of the dastardly crime. A post mortem examination will be held over the remains of Mrs. Sanders tomorrow morning.

Shortly after midnight last night James L. Hammond arrived in Washington from Canonsburg with Ed Durr, the third suspected party to the crime. He is only 16 years old. He was immediately taken to the Sheriff's office, where he made a confession, in which he implicated the two fellows arrested yesterday, Bush Durr and George F. Teaters from Cessville, V. Va., and Wheeling Island, respectively. Durr said in substance in his confession that the three fellows had been coming along the pike near Little Toledo when the rain came up and they got over the fence and crawled under the corn shocks.

Shortly after that they worked their way up to a hay stack and stood under it until dark. Then Teaters and Ed Durr went to the house Bush refusing to go. Teaters knocked at the door of Mrs. Sanders' house, and when she opened it, pushed the revolver into her face, demanding her money or her life.

The lady held in her hand a lamp, and being somewhat frightened her hand trembled, knocking the chimney against the revolver and breaking it. The flame went out, leaving the party in total darkness. Teaters tried to strike a match, but was prevented by the wind. By this time Mrs. Sanders had procured her revolver and opened fire on the ruffians. The lad who made the confession hastily left and went to the hay-stack, and after the five shots had been fired, one of which ultimately killed the woman, Teaters joined him. It is a clear case of too much dime novel of the Jesse James sort.

Wrongly Named.

Some bolters against the nomination of Colonel Livingston for Congress in the Fifth Georgia District style themselves the "Jeffersonian Democracy."

This is on the same principle that Colonel Haskell's synd in South Carolina assumes the presumptive appellation, "straightouts."

Both of these organizations would be much more fittingly named if they should call themselves the Republican Aid Society. That is what they amount to, and if they accomplish anything it will be in that line.

There is nothing Jeffersonian about bolting a Democratic nomination because the candidate is not in all respects personally acceptable, and such a proceeding is in no wise straight.

The Georgia and South Carolina bolters have mistaken their position and got hold of the wrong names.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

For Congress

WILLIAM H. FORNEY,

Of Calhoun County.

Mrs. McKee, who is charged with poisoning Mrs. Wimpee, of Rome, has not been captured although vigorously pursued. The last heard of her was in Memphis. She has been indicted for murder by the grand jury of Floyd county.

One hundred and thirty shoe manufacturers recently met in New York and decided that there must be an advance in the price of shoes of from 25 to 50 cents per pair on account of the increased duty on such goods under the new tariff law. This illustrates the Republican system of protection; a system that taxes the masses for the benefit of a few.

The Leland Hotel in Syracuse, N. Y., was destroyed by fire the 16th inst., and twenty-five lives were lost. The scene was a most horrible and sickening one. People dashed themselves from five story windows or sank back in the flames in full sight of people in the streets. The fire broke out after midnight when the guests were asleep. The hotel cost $1,500,000 and had 400 rooms.

Don't fail to go to the polls the first Tuesday in November and cast your vote for the Democratic candidate for Congress. The Democratic party is all that now stands between the people and a despotism which will subvert the liberties of the people and grind the faces of the poor for the benefit of the trust and rich corporations. In the success of the Democratic party lies the only hope of the country.

Gen. Forney reached home Thursday night at midnight from his canvass in the Eastern part of the District and at once next day went to the Western counties of the District. He is making a very active and close canvass, speaking both day and night. He is well received by the people, especially by the farmers, where he has opportunity to meet them and lay before them his position on public questions affecting their interests. Much mail had accumulated here for him during his absence. He requests us to say that it will be impossible to have his mail to follow him from point to point, as he will be constantly on the move, and that if parties do not receive prompt replies to letters they may know this to be the reason.

The visit of the European iron and steel men to the South will be of immense benefit to this section. It is an open secret that the iron manufacturers of the North discouraged the visit of these gentlemen to the South, and went so far as to discourage the claims of the South as to being a great iron producing country; but our foreign visitors were too well informed to be misled and Tuesday they reached Birmingham. At this writing they have not visited this country, but they are billed for Anniston and doubtless will have reached there before this paper goes to press. When they have seen the extraordinary resources of Jefferson and Calhoun counties, it follows as a matter of course that much foreign money will come to the development of both.

While Gen. Forney was in Shelby county he was approached by a man who broadly and insultingly insinuated that Gen. Forney had been voting in the interest of the National banks. The spirit of the old soldier was aroused at the pointed and insulting manner of the man, and he flatly told him to go to his informant and tell him that he was a liar. This settled the matter and the man shrank away discomfited. Gen. Forney has always voted the other way. He has also always voted for a reduction of the tariff. He has voted, worked for and succeeded in the restoration of public lands to the people by railroads which never earned the grants by completing the roads. In short he has always been on the side of the masses of the people, and it was meet and proper that he should have met the insinuations of his would-be traducer as he did.

We do not think there is a patriotic Democrat in the country, who is actuated by a regard for the welfare of the country, who can fail to vote for Gen. Forney over either of his competitors, if he only goes to the polls. The danger to the standard bearer of the Democratic party lies in the over-confidence of Democrats themselves. Three Congressmen were lost to the Democracy in Missouri last election through this over-confidence and apathy on the part of Democrats and the result was the Republicans controlled the House, turned out Democrats by wholesale, put Tyrant Reed in the chair, passed the Force bill through the House, and greatly increased the taxes on the people for the benefit of the Trusts. What is the duty of every patriotic Democrat in this District, in view of these facts? Is it not his duty to go to the polls and help his party to send its standard bearer to Congress? Ask yourself this question.

Park Avenue has been brought to grade and the work of McAdamsing and paving began Monday. It will be macadamized in the same substantial manner that Francis Avenue has been and the result will be a street that will bear the heaviest traffic for a hundred years. In fact a street laid in the self-cementing crushed stone found in the mountain here is practically indestructible. We look for grading to begin very soon now on Washington, London, Edmonds and other important streets, with a very much larger force of workmen. With the beginning of work on the steel plant with a force of several hundred men will begin work on these important streets mentioned and others. All will be graded and paved alike. The material for McAdamsing streets is inexhaustible. There is a mountain full of it.

New York capitalists have offered to put $350,000 into a steel plant at Birmingham if the people of the city will put in $50,000. The city will doubtless raise the money. In a comparatively short time Alabama will be a great steel producing state as well as iron producing state.

The work of grading and McAdamsing continuation of Francis Avenue into the public square will begin in a few days. Several houses will have to be removed to make the street the necessary width, but this has been provided for.

Mr. Edmonds, editor of the Manufacturers' Record, has engaged rooms at the Tredegar Inn for himself and several others of his own and his mother's family and will spend the Winter in Jacksonville to see the place grow.

Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, OCT. 13, 1890.

It is stated on the authority of a member of the President's official family that it had been decided to call an extra session of Congress to meet early in November after the elections. There has been a good deal of gossip floating during the past week as to the likelihood of an extra session, but it was believed that it was pure speculation. The few members and Senators in town were inclined to so regard it, and at the Republican Congressional Committee headquarters last Friday it was stated with positiveness that no extra session would be held. But something seems to have occurred to make the Administration conclude that an extra session was necessary. This something is believed to have been the advice coming in from all parts of the country regarding the prospects of the Republicans in the pending Congressional elections. These advices are believed to have been to the effect that the Republicans could scarcely hope to secure a majority in the next House of Representatives, notwithstanding the immense amount of work they were doing in the doubtful districts. The effect of the McKinley bill in causing a raise in prices of many of the necessities of life proved very discouraging to their campaigners, and instead of the bill helping the party it seems destined to do more damage than any other element in the pending struggle. When Congress adjourned the question of an extra session was held in abeyance. The President did not want to call one if it could be avoided. If the Republicans could retain their hold on the House in the next Congress then they could pass the Force bill at their leisure in case the short session of the present Congress did not afford them time to do it. There is no absolute unanimity among the Republican leaders as regards the expediency of calling an extra session. It being necessary to issue the proclamation in advance of the election, the idea arises that it would be taken up by the Democrats, who would charge that the Republicans did not expect to carry the Congressional elections, and were forestalling their defeat. This might work injury in some of the close districts, which the Republicans are endeavoring to carry. This argument has some weight, but, in view of the practical necessity of having plenty of time in which to complete the Republican programme, conjectured dangers must be overlooked.

The chief employment now of the Secretary of the Democratic congressional campaign committee is opening telegrams. In the five minutes during which your correspondent stood by his desk this morning

...any rapid calculation can easily figure it out from this how many anxious people all over the country are in too big a hurry to use Uncle Sam's mail in communicating with the Democratic campaign committee. Every day a huge mass of documents go out from the committee rooms to the waiting voters. "This is a campaign of education," is the watchword at headquarters, and the committee are determined that the voters shall be educated if an unlimited supply of documents on the tariff, on the silver question and on every other issue under the sun or under Thomas B. Reed can do it. Carlisle's speech on the tariff will be sent out during the next few days in large numbers. This speech has been delayed by the indisposition of the distinguished Senator from Kentucky, but is still expected to be a very effective document. The news of the fatal prostration of Hon. Samuel F. Miller, Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court, created a profound sensation throughout the city, where he has so long resided and is so universally esteemed, followed by a corresponding solitude as to the result, in which the country at large, of which he was a conspicuous and honored citizen, will naturally share.

Mr. W. H. Rowe, one of the proprietors of the Industrial World, of Cincinnati, was in Jacksonville this week looking after the boom. Mr. Rowe is a large property owner in Jacksonville, having bought here during the Company land sale some months ago, both from the company and from private parties. He has great faith in Jacksonville and holds his property here at stiff prices.

There has not been a day this week that less than ten thousand dollars worth of real estate has been sold, and most of the sales have run from twenty to thirty thousand dollars each day. And still there is little excitement and very little demonstration. One thing may be said of real estate transactions here that can be said of few places and that is that there has not been a fictitious sale. All sales are made in good faith, from one-third to all of the purchase money being paid down.

The New Tariff Bill Serves the Trusts.
A final word in respect to the McKinley tariff on "trusts," meaning thereby combinations of domestic manufacturers to control and advance prices. No trust of this kind, operating on articles for which there is a possible competitive supply from other countries, could be maintained in the United States for a single month except under one of the two conditions—either the competitive producers throughout the world must be brought into the "trust," or, what is the same thing, the product of the whole world must be controlled, or the product of all foreign producers must be debared from the markets of this country. The first result is not attainable. The second is made not only possible, but effective in the highest degree by high protective duties. These duties the McKinley tariff act provides. It thus becomes the creator and preserver of trusts and monopolies, the like of which cannot and do not exist under the tariff system of Great Britain, as the starch trust, plate and window glass trust, nail trust, cotton bagging trust, linseed oil trust, lead trust, borax trust, axe, saw and scythe trust, and many others; all of which, freed from foreign competition, are advancing prices to American consumers to an extent that will afford them from 50 to 100 per cent. more profit than can be fairly considered as legitimate, but in which profits their employees do not participate.

John Sherman "a speech in the Senate September 29, just previous to the final vote in that body on the McKinley bill, clearly apprehended the opportunities it afforded to the "citizens and corporations" "to make corners and by various combinations to cheat the people;" but, with almost childish simplicity, he expressed a hope that the citizens and corporations to whom such opportunities had been afforded would act judiciously, invite fair competition and give the benefit of this competition to the people in cheaper production—the very results which the trusts, as he well knew, were organized to prevent. If they did not do this, he warned them, he should in future vote against them. And this, he said, "is my parting legacy." Could there be anything found quite equal to this outside of a burlesque opera?

Such, then in the main, are my views respecting the present and prospective influence of the McKinley tariff.

Owing to exposure I have been indisposed with acute rheumatism about six months. My skill failed to afford me relief and I was induced to try Bull's Sarsaparilla, and must confess that it entirely cured me. It is decidedly superior to all other preparations of Sarsaparilla.—B. B. Allen, M. D., Brandon, Ky.

Shiloh's Consumption Cure.
Successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold, a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup, and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no medicine can stand. If you have a Cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10 cents, 50 cents, and $1.00.

Atlanta Constitution: Brother Wamaker has already made a snug pile out of the McKinley bill in buying up all the tin pans in Philadelphia in advance. There is nothing like a man being "on the inside," as it were.

Answer This Question.
Why do so many people we see around us seem to prefer to suffer and be made miserable by Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Coming Up of the Food, Yellow Skin, when for 75 cents we will sell them Shiloh's System Vitalize, guaranteed to cure them.

We have a strong and positive cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria, Cank Mouth and Headache, in Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. A Nasal Injector free with each bottle. Use it if you desire health and sweet breath. Price 50 cents.

GENERAL GORDON.

The Old Confederate Soldier Replies to a Resolution of the Alliance.

Because he could not endorse the Sub-treasury bill the Farmers' Alliance of Forsyth county, Ga., passed resolutions declaring Gov. Gordon "no longer worthy of trust." The Governor went to Forsyth and thus replied to the charge:

"The Governor began by saying that he felt like he was coming home to his kindred. In the adjoining county his eyes first opened to the balmy skies which a benignant God still bends above us. 'I love this people,' said he, 'and I know that they have loved me. I know, too, that when the light of truth shall fall upon the record they will love me still.' [Applause.]

He then replied to the Alliance resolution as follows:

"When I read that statement of my brethren, made in all the solemnity of a resolution, that the said John B. Gordon is no longer worthy of trust, I was forcibly reminded of my last interview on the battlefield with one of the grandest men who has appeared in all the tide of time. As I rode back from Appomattox Courthouse, after having met the conquering general, by the side of General Lee, he said to me, with his heart swelling and breaking, 'I wish, general, that I had fallen in one of the last battles.'"

"Why, General?" said I. "Because my countrymen will misjudge me." "How?" said I.

"They will imagine that with eight or ten thousand veterans I ought still to have continued the warfare in the mountains with a possibility of final success for the confederate cause."

"I endeavored to turn his thought on other lines, but General Lee's heart was broken at the very thought of the possibility that his countrymen might misjudge him."

"I confess, my friends, that, while I have entirely recovered from that shock, yet when I first read those words, coming in a solemn resolution from honest, upright, honorable men, deliberately penned, deliberately enacted as their judgment of myself, I felt for the moment as did General Lee."

"But, my friends, I know you. I have never had a moment of anger. I have had several of anguish, but as truth shall finally triumph, my name will be vindicated and I shall live again in the hearts of these my brethren." [Applause]

He continued then on the following line:

"Government is a very serious business at best. Algeon Sidney said that the most serious business on earth, next to the Christian religion, is government. There is not a man, woman or child living whose destinies, for weal or woe, are not dependent on the government. In monarchies the king is responsible, but in governments like ours every man who wields the ballot is responsible. My countrymen, we can't dodge it. Very few appreciate the power we wield in this little piece of paper. 'You white men' in the south are responsible for the government of the south. God, in his providence, has selected you to transmit the blessings of government to posterity."

"The sun rises and reigns supreme over all lesser lights. The proud eagle mounts to meet the sun and follows in his flight, because God made him so; the lion, king of beasts, roams the forest by heaven's law; the oak trees defiantly flaunt their green banners in the breeze, monarchs of the forest by heaven's law; and the white man, by the same omnipotent fiat, through all the shifting scenes of the years, has won his forefathers God Almighty's signet." [Applause]

"What are you going to do about it? Are you going to blot out the sun that the stars may better shine? Are you going to clip the wings of the eagle that the bat may soar? Are you going to hew down the mighty oaks and the cedars of Lebanon that the black jack may have a chance?"

Following this the governor depicted the division among the white men and said that there were factors in the present state of affairs that promote discussion. He said discussion had been made by a wrong use of the sub-treasury bill, and that the wrong use was in making it a test of loyalty. The Alliance principles and to the democratic party.

He referred to his Eutonon prediction that between this date and the election, we will find new converts to Alliance doctrines men who would never have heard of it that connection but for the vacancy at Washington and the majority of Alliance men in the legislature. We never saw that before. The fall revivals had not set in. [Laughter.] They are all hopefully converted. It's so catching. [Laughter.] They are all hopefully converted, all orthodox, all have the same pulse and the same amount of fever. All broke out with the Alliance nettles. [Great laughter.] There is an epidemic of letters and interviews. They are not candidates, but if you want to nominate them they will let you. Did any of them ever preach your doctrines? Not a word until this vacancy occurs. You turn your guns upon me, agreeing with you, instead of turning them upon the enemy at Washington. I didn't make the high tariff, did I? I didn't demonetize silver, I stood there opposing contraction of the currency and being thanked by you, and yet you have your guns turned on me instead of the enemy at Washington. You are firing at the wrong man. Do you know how Stonewall Jackson lost his life. He lost his life, not by the guns of the enemy, but because his comrades turned their guns in the wrong direction. In the misty twilight, in the underbrush of the wilderness, while he was reconnoitering the way, they shot down Jackson, for whom they would have given their lives. The way to win this fight is to turn your guns on the enemy."

The governor was interrupted by three cheers, and proceeded:

"Thank you, my friends, let us cheer the truth. There is a reason for all this. I want to get at it. There is not one man who puts his signature to that resolution toward whom I feel any bitterness or resentment. They are honest, but they are mistaken. They resolved, that the said John B. Gordon is unworthy. When did he get so? I did not know I was to be tried. You tried and condemned me without ever letting me know that I was to be tried. I know not what I am charged with. My life, I thought, was an open book."

"My fellow-freemen of Monroe county, for your own sake you can't afford to let an act like that go down to posterity. It won't hold water after this election is over. Never in a Christian age has such a trial as that been considered just. You have made a mistake. You should have said, 'The said John B. Gordon is charged with—etc.' You would not have treated the veriest outcast in Monroe county that way. Courts and juries and law and justice become meaningless words, the silver mountings on the coffin of your liberties, if such a custom prevails. If you have grievance against me, let's know what they are."

The governor then reviewed his record from the war onward. When he saw this brotherhood coming he said, "My prophecy is fulfilled. Now we will see agriculture assert itself, because an army is at last mustered for the cause. And yet this very organization for which I have been pleading for eighteen years turns all its batteries upon me, instead of upon the republican party, whose policies have so afflicted this people. The governor said that in his letter replying to Harry Brown last April, in his La Grange speech, and in his Atlanta speech he said the same thing."

"In the first letter I said I cannot advise any specific measure. I saw that if we attempted to carry any specific measure we would wreck the brotherhood. What did I say in La Grange? The same thing, in other words: 'Agitate! Agitate on all lines, on all bills—your sub-treasury bill, and every other bill—but don't drive from you any friend by requiring endorsement, but still stand for your great principles.' I said the same thing in my speech in Atlanta, but in different words. I can't endorse any specific measure. If I had the best bill that ever came from the brain of man, I should give you the same advice. It is a difference in words, none whatever in the idea."

Argued against committing the Alliance to details. "How much wiser is it to spread on your banners your unconquerable principles, and bring them to victory! To carry the Congress, that's what you want. You will never carry the Congress on any other policy. Don't introduce details on which your friends cannot agree." [Applause]

Here the governor argued at length in favor of an income tax. He urged them to let men go down, but not to let their order go to pieces on a specific bill. Here he told of an incident of Lee and Jackson. They differed as to the route by which the attack on a fort was to be made. General Jackson said: "That's not the right way." General Lee said: "My engineers say it is." General Jackson replied: "Your engineers don't know anything about it." General Lee looked at him a moment, and replied: "General Jackson, you think your way is the best way. I have great faith in my engineers. We will meet at the fort." The banners of Lee and Jackson met and their forces joined in victory upon the ramparts of the enemy.

The governor wound up by alluding to the remark that the people were tired of generals, and said that when the southern people wished to forget their sacred memories, they might as well say goodbye to southern manhood.

The speech was received with frequent applause, and when it was over numbers shook the governor's hand.

A Gigantic Steel-Making Enterprise to Employ Over 3,000 Men.

Once of the greatest industrial enterprises organized in the United States is the immense steel plant to be built at Tredgar, Ala. (or, as the post-office authorities still call it, Jacksonville, Ala., the new name not having been officially adopted yet). This plant is to include three 100-ton turnaces, rolling mill, rail mill, cotton tie mill, etc., and will cover over 20 acres of ground. About 15,000,000 brick will be required in its construction, and a $100,000 brickyard is to be established just for the making of these bricks, and, of course, to make brick for the market after the steel plant has been constructed. The steel works will turn out 300 tons of finished steel a day, and will give employment to over three thousand men, or more than three-fourths of whom will be skilled mechanics. The practically unlimited supply of fine iron ores, of manganese and of limestone, makes Tredgar an unusually desirable place for such a gigantic enterprise. In fact Tredgar is one of the most attractive sites in the United States for an industrial town. It is situated in a beautiful valley, surrounded by high mountains, and is the county seat of Calhoun, one of the richest mineral and agricultural counties of Alabama. It has a population of about 2,000, 2,500, fine schools, good churches and many beautiful residences. Some months ago the Jacksonville Mining & Manufacturing Co., commenced the active development of the town, and since then the managers have secured the big steel plant, the construction of which is absolutely assured; a cotton-seed oil mill and gin, nearly completed; a $50,000 national bank in operation; brick works, etc., and will soon be able to definitely announce other enterprises involving the investment of not less than $1,000,000 in cash and to employ nearly two thousand hands. The company has pursued a wise and conservative policy, seeking to avoid any boom excitement and getting matters into shape for the most solid and substantial progress ever made in Alabama. The steel works and the other enterprises that are practically secured will alone make a town of 12,000 or 15,000 people in addition to the population now there. For diversified industries, such as woodworking factories, cotton and woolen mills, ice factory, soap factory and many other lines, a more inviting place cannot be found. Nor can a more attractive town as a place of residence be found in the South. Tredgar offers the best of social advantages, a bracing climate, dry and delightful in winter and summer.—Baltimore Journal of Commerce.

BOOKS AND STATEMENTS.

T. H. Payne, of Payne & Co., books and stationery says:

"We have, however, notice from all the manufacturers of blank books of an advance of from 10 to 20 per cent. as the best leather and gold leaf used in the manufacture of blank books are imported. The best copy books are used, and the best are all made from imported paper. The duty on these books is 20 per cent. which means an advance of 20 per cent. in prices. There are also many small notions that we job in that will be advanced."

Mr. Hunter, of Joel & Hunter, haberdashers, says that trade has increased with them since the passage of the bill, as the public has made extra purchases in anticipation of the advance in prices. They have purchased most of their goods for the summer season. "Our goods will be advanced in all lines, with the exception of hats, 20 to 40 per cent."

Mr. Silva, of Silva & Abbott, wholesale and retail china, merchants, says: "We made most of our importation before the bill came in force. Everything is all unsettled as to prices, with a general tendency upwards. The advance on Rogers cutlery is 25 per cent. On lamp chimneys the duty is 450 per cent. which is a practically prohibitive tariff. Some business houses have put up the prices and others have not as yet—all in confusion. An ordinary lamp shades the price has gone up immensely. On ordinary pottery and table decorations the duty is only 3 per cent., which will make no difference in price to the consumer. There is no decline in prices in any line."

Mr. Kingsley, of R. C. Kingsley & Co., variety store, hardware, etc., says, "So far as we have heard from our commercial men and visitors there will be an advance in a great many lines of merchandise from 20 to 40 per cent., principally on baskets, on glass that enters into the manufacture of mirrors, and brass and glass goods that enter into the manufacture of glass. There will also be the same advance on tinware. We have not, as yet, bought many goods at the advance."

Mr. Paddock, of McDonald & Paddock, wholesale and retail carpets, and upholstery, says: "Wholesale dealers and mills have notified us of an advance in all lines of carpets of from 10 to 15 per cent. The bill affects all articles in our line, carpets, rugs and upholstery, from 10 to 15 per cent. The travelers all say there will be an additional advance soon. When the wholesale men have to buy new stock there will be a still further advance."

Mr. Fox, of I. T. Fox & Son, dry goods, says: "The bill will affect cheaper imported goods more than expensive lines. Everything in imported stuffs will be affected the same, as in linen, hosiery and dress goods. All linen handkerchiefs are imported and it affects these seriously. I have just returned from the East and there is great excitement there. The New York market is empty. The wholesale men are afraid to buy imported goods for fear that the retail men will not purchase them at the increased price."

Mr. Wassman, of Wassman Bros., clothing store, says that for the present the bill affects all the imported stock. "This stock is on the rise and will cost more money in every line—some goods as much as 25 per cent. There is an upward tendency in all goods. The bulk of our stock is imported. There is also an upward tendency in the price of domestic goods."

In the line of musical instruments the advance has been very marked and henceforward we must "pay for our whistles" pretty high. Mr. Nelson, of Winters & Nelson, pianos

HOW IT WORKS.

THE NEW TARIFF BILL RAISES PRICES GENERALLY.

The Chattanooga Times has interviewed Chattanooga merchants upon the effect of the new tariff act upon prices of goods. The Times says:

The celebrated McKinley bill which has created such a furore in the political world, came into effect on the 6th inst., and in order to ascertain its effect on the city a Times reporter called on a number of the leading retail men. Prices as yet are in a state of confusion, owing to the fact that in anticipation of the tariff coming into effect a large amount of goods were purchased by wholesale men, and some of these demand the price resulting from the increased tariff, while others are willing to sell at old prices. Many of the firms here have also in anticipation of the advanced prices purchased their goods in advance, and as a consequence few purchases have actually been made since the bill came in force. There is, however, a general advance in prices on those lines of goods covered by the new tariff.

There is also an upward tendency in the price of domestic goods."

In the line of musical instruments the advance has been very marked and henceforward we must "pay for our whistles" pretty high. Mr. Nelson, of Winters & Nelson, pianos and musical instruments, says: "We have just received notice from the wholesale men that all goods in our line will go up from 40 to 100 per cent. There is a very material advance in prices."

Mr. Wise, of Wise & Co., drugs and surgical instruments, says that they have received notice of an advance of 20 per cent. in cutting instruments, and that the bottom is knocked out of prices in rubber goods."

Mr. Magill, of Carter-Magill Hardware Company, says that the bill materially affects prices in some lines of hardware. "We import a great deal of German cutlery," said Mr. Magill, and in this line knives that cost $1.50 a dozen will now cost $2.30; those that cost $2 now cost $3. On the lower grade of knives there is an advance of 50 per cent. We are affected most in the low grades of cutlery and in guns. There is an advance in muzzle-loading guns of 15 per cent., an average of 25 per cent. in the higher class of guns there is an advance of 10 per cent. Imported anvils have largely advanced. There is a marked advance in the lower grades of cutlery, which will cut the German trade. In table cutlery, however, the Americans have long led the markets."

The harness and saddle trade came in for a large share of the increased prices. Mr. A. X. Howard, of Howard & Co., harness and saddlery goods, says: "The bill has advanced prices already 10 per cent., and we cannot tell how much higher they will go. The duty cuts off South American hides and enables the Chicago dealers to advance the price of leather. 'I'll tell you what it is,' said Mr. Howard, with a good deal of fire in his eye, 'it just benefits the big monopoly—' but here the reporter had to stop Mr. Howard and inform him that this article was not designed for a political article, but simply as a collection of facts."

Mr. H. Simmons, furniture, says that the bill does not affect his business except in the matter of looking glasses, on which there is an advance of 25 per cent. "This," said Mr. Simmons, "is an important item, as this is a large trade here. We have very little imported furniture."

Mr. H. Schwartz, of Schwartz & Bros., boots and shoes, says that the price of leather has gone up from 5 to 10 per cent., and as a consequence, all lines of goods will advance in price that much."

Mr. A. T. Dewees, of Dewees & Co. grocers, says: "Half our goods are imported. We bought heavily before the bill came into effect. On bottled fruits and fancy goods the advance will be about 5 per cent., and in French peas and mushrooms, 5 to 10 per cent. On nuts and dried fruits the advance is 25 per cent. There is an advance of a cent a pound on prunes, though currants are a cent a pound cheaper, as the duty has been removed to that extent on them. The advance in olives and olive oil is also very marked. Trade is better for the time being, and the wholesale and retail men who were well stocked before the bill came into force have done well."

Mr. Edmunds, of Joel, Hunter & Edmunds, Ladies' Bazaar:

"What is the effect of the bill on prices of goods in certain lines. On plush goods, capes and coats the advance will be from 30 to 35 per cent. On certain lines of linen handkerchiefs the advance is 35 per cent. Jersey cloths that we make Jersey coats out of has gone up 25 per cent., and velvets 10 per cent. Wool Hosiery and cashmeres 10 to 15 per cent. I have a letter from Mr. Gibbs this morning, one of the biggest New York houses, which reads as follows:

"Mark up your pearl buttons. We had one case belated of 1,483 gross. Cost in Vienna.....$ 620 00 Duty.....157 00 Additional duty under the McKinley bill.....754 00 Total.....$1,531 00

"The bill presses hardest on all the common lines of goods, and lets off the finer goods."

"The celebrated P. D. Corset has been advanced from $1.50 to $3 on the dozen."

We are afraid the above will be the most unwelcome news to the fair sex of Chattanooga, and nothing but a rigid sense of duty could induce the reporter to make it public.

The effect of the bill does not stop here, but touches the building question very materially. Mr. Patton, architect, says: "Portland cements, nearly all of which are imported, have gone up 3 cents one 100 pounds, and domestic cements have gone up in consequence. Iron for roofing and all tin and galvanized iron have materially advanced. Every ten square feet of roofing now costs 50 cents more than before the bill. All tin plates are imported. I have received notices from the plumbers that prices will be immediately advanced on account of the McKinley bill. The price of plumbing has gone up on account of lined oil and other raw materials used in plumbing having gone up. It seriously affects contractors who have already made contracts, and will very much affect the price of future contracts. There has been an advance in the lower grades of structural iron, which is used considerably in building, especially in fire-proof buildings. The direct effect here will be an increase of prices in all painting, plumbing, graining, galvanized iron work and glazing."

Wm. H. Davidson, the greenbacker or anything else to get office candidate for congress, claims that an attack on him is an attack on the whole of that grand organization, the Farmers' Alliance. Bad men sometimes get into the best organizations and Davidson's getting into the Alliance is an instance. Here is what Jourdain White, who has known Davidson from boyhood and who is as far above Davidson as a man, as George Washington was above the most degraded negro in the convict prisons of Alabama, says about Davidson, in the Moulton Advertiser, of a recent date. Mr. White is also a member of the Farmers' Alliance:

"W. H. Davidson of Winston, who is a stink in the nostrils of every decent person, has threatened to sue the Hamilton Herald and other papers in that district for slander. This is a joke. Davidson is playing for notoriety. Like a buzzard, he never knows when he has enough. Some two years ago he threatened us with a law suit for having warned the people to beware of him—that in this county he had slandered an innocent girl which caused the death of one good man and the imprisonment of another—but the poor wretch got no retraction or consolation and let the matter drop. There is but one way to slander Davidson, and that would be to call him a 'gentleman,' which no person with any regard whatever for the truth and justice can afford to do. The poor girl, whose character Davidson sought to destroy, has been carried home to glory, but his slanderous tongue broke up two happy families and left scars which can never be defaced. With his dark deeds before the public, it requires a great deal of forbearance to submit to his insolence and presence in a respectable community."

This is the man who has unadulterated gall and cheek enough, after such action, to ask respectable white men to vote for him for one of the highest offices in the gift of the people.—Jasper Eagle.

How to Gain in Flesh.

It is not what one eats that makes one fat, but the food that is properly digested and assimilated that increases the flesh. The food that lies and ferments in the stomach or passes undigested into the viscera, does the system much harm, as they say, it makes a man thin to carry so much effete matter around with him. In order that there be a full and thorough digestion and assimilation of food, the stomach, the liver and the kidneys must be kept in the finest condition. These great organs of life frequently need the aid of various herbal juices. It is to them what oil is to machinery. It enables them to do their work with less friction. It is this friction that wears out mechanical machinery as well as the machinery of life. Now science has discovered the herbs that naturally aid the movements of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. They are contained in that efficacious remedy known as Dr. Bull's Sarsaparilla. If you are in a state of general ill health give it a trial and see how much better you will feel.

In reference to the fact that his name had been frequently mentioned in the press of the State as a possible candidate to succeed Senator Brown in the United States Senate, Hon. W. J. Northern said to a staff correspondent of the Atlanta Journal that the statements were never authorized by himself. He said: "I am in no sense a candidate. The people did me great honor when they made me Governor of Georgia. If I can serve them in this position with credit to myself and good to the state I shall be fully satisfied. I appreciate fully the honor of being mentioned in so distinguished a connection, but I am not a candidate to the United States Senate, either announced or possible." In reply to another question, he said: "The people are undoubtedly greatly stirred, and I regret to see it. Some unwise and hurtful things are being done, but I have great confidence in the final triumph of right principles and the preservation of the party. We can not afford to do anything that will in any way disturb the integrity of the Democratic party, and I hope that wise counsels will prevail."

His Son Cured.

Mr. W. H. Hinman, a prominent and influential citizen of Mount Vernon, Ill., writes as follows, under date of March 11, 1890: "One bottle of Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) cured my son permanently of a stubborn case of Blood Poison that defied the best medical treatment available. I have recommended S. S. S. to others for blood troubles and diseases of the skin, and have never known it to fail to cure in any case."

Blood Poison Cured.

I was troubled for years with Blood Poison in its very worst form. I was treated by the very best physicians of Louisville, Ky., and Evansville, Ind., but they failed to benefit me in any way. A few bottles of Swift's Specific, S. S. S., cured me, sound and well. This was over four years ago, and there has been no return of the disease since, or any symptoms of it. I have recommended it to others for blood poison, and in every case they were permanently cured."

I was in poor health and losing flesh. The food I ate did not agree with me. My liver, kidneys and stomach all seemed deranged. I began a use of Dr. Bull's Sarsaparilla, which has made me feel like a new man and increased my weight.—S. R. Newton, Columbus, O.

The Cause of Pain.

An ache or pain is not of itself a disease, it is but a symptom, and warns the sufferer that there is something the matter with his physical organization. Weak kidney, bad nervousness are frequently the sources or cause of the many mysterious aching sensations that afflict the body. You can remove the cause of such distress by using B. B. B. (Bottled Blood Balm).

C. H. Roberts, Atlanta, Ga., writes: "My kidneys were disordered and gave me excruciating pain. A single bottle of B. B. B. helped me wonderfully."

Wm. N. Nelson, McDonough, Ga., writes: "B. B. B. has benefited my daughter very much. She was afflicted with severe nervousness. I think it the best family medicine."

W. R. Ellis, Brunswick, Ga., writes: "I have tried B. B. B. and it is a great thing for the blood. It also cured me of rheumatic pains."

A father loves his child. A mother worships it. Both decide the child should occasionally be given Dr. Bull's Worm Destroyers.

NEGRO EQUALITY

In the Platform On Which Candidate Butler Stands.

While Butler is slipping and sliding about, courting the votes of all the people he believes to be loose in Democratic principles, claiming the support of Alliancemen because he is an unworthy member of the order, and claiming Republican support because he is in opposition to the standard bearer of the Democratic party, the Democratic papers of this District have been examining that plank in his published platform designed to catch the negro vote, and there is but one conclusion drawn by every paper that has discussed it, and that is that it means nothing more nor less than negro equality both political and social. In order that his position may be fairly understood we print below the seventh plank in his platform. It reads as follows:

"Do unto others as we would have them do unto us," as relates to the negro race in our midst; that is, just dealing and fair treatment, as is due that race by the white people of Alabama."

If Mr. Butler means that the negro is denied his political rights in this District, he slanders the white people of the District. If he means that the negro is denied justice in the courts, he libels the juries of the District. If he means that the negro is cheated out of the fruits of his toil he charges dishonesty upon the farmers who employ them and the merchants who trade with them. If he means, in short, that the negro is deprived of his civil and political rights and is mistreated in his person or deprived of the just reward of his labor, then he is no better than the howling radicals, like Tom Reed, who are making the northern States ring with the false stories of the wrongs inflicted upon the negro by the white people of the South, and who are thus kindling the bitterest animosity against this section. If he does not mean to bring such a charge against the white people of this District which he seeks to represent in Congress, then what does he mean by demanding in his platform "just treatment and fair dealing as is due that race?" If he does not mean thus to slander the constituency whose support he is asking, then we must find his meaning in those other words of his seventh plank, which read, "do unto others as we would have them do unto us, as relates to the negro race in our midst."

In other words in order to extend to the negro that "just dealing and fair treatment" demanded by Butler, we must do unto the negro as we would have the negro do unto us if we could exchange places with the negro. If the white man could exchange conditions, habits of thought, low social position and instincts with the negro, he would have precisely the same prejudices, the same aspirations, the same desires of the negro. Now what do the mass of the negro race most passionately of all things on earth desire? It is to be the social equal of the white man, to have the privilege of intermarriage, to have the entrance to white churches, to sit with white people at hotels and the tables of private families. That is what the seventh plank of Butler's platform says we must do unto the negro, if it means anything in the world. It is either a slander upon the people of the Seventh Congressional District, as it relates to the negro race, or it is a bold declaration in favor of political and social equality of the races, including miscegenation and all the foul desires that spring from the heart of a race the lowest in the scale of humanity, long depraved by slavery and little enlightened by education. If Butler in this plank of his platform means no slander upon the white people of the district, but on the contrary is ready to admit that the white people now treat the negro as well as he deserves to be, and if further he does not mean to set up a demand for social and political equality of the races, then what under heaven does he mean? If he means neither the one nor the other he does not understand the use of language and is too simple entirely to represent this district in Congress.

But he does mean what his words imply. He so luster after office that he throws out this fearful bid for negro support. He has gone further than any Radical who has ever run in this District. The utmost any Radical has ever claimed for the negro in this District was a "free ballot and a fair count," and that was a lie by implication; for the negro has always and now has that. It has been left for Butler to make this demand of both political and social equality. Whatever we would have the negro do for us, if we occupied his place, that, Butler says, we must also do for him. He does not stand upon Almighty God's disposition of the relation of the races, wherein the white man is master of the world, but, contorting a charitable expression of the gentle Christ to base political use, he would have the white man wipe out the line written by God's omnipotent hand. Shame, shame, that any white man in the Seventh District could be found to advocate such a monstrous doctrine for the pitiful object of catching negro votes in his race for Congress?

The Negro newspaper at Anniston, the Vindicator, of the 18th contains a stirring address to the negro voters of this Congressional District, urging them to turn out to the polls and vote for Logan, the Negro candidate for Congress. The address is signed by C. B. Bland, chairman, and J. M. Dawson secretary, of the Negro wing of the District Republican Executive Committee.

For some reason the Negro Republicans of this District have shown a great deal of activity within the past few days. Can it be that they have assurances that Logan will be seated by a Republican Congress, if he runs anywhere close to Gen. Forney? But for the candidacy of Butler there would be no fear that the Negro candidate would get anywhere within thousands of votes of Gen. Forney. If Butler takes off any considerable number of white men from Gen. Forney the conditions will be changed. This is the shameful feature of Butler's sneaking candidacy. It emboldens the negro to contend for a seat in Congress and may result in the seating of a negro by an unscrupulous Republican House. No white man, worthy the name, would thus endanger the interests of the white people of this District and the whole South. Such a man ought to receive a scorching rebuke at the polls. Democrats—white men—do your duty! Go to the polls to a man and cast your vote for Gen. Forney the candidate of the Democratic party—the candidate of the white man's party.

Pilley, the man who is running in this State against Col. Herbert for Congress and who claims the support of both the Farmers' Alliance and the Republican party in that District met Col. Herbert on the stump some days ago. Col. Herbert asked him pointedly if he would or would not vote for Tom Reed for Speaker, if elected. He refused to answer the question and this let him down with the few misguided Democrats who would have voted for him.

The Republicans have developed wonderful activity in this Congressional District within the past week. Logan, the candidate of the negro wing of the Republican party, is making a personal canvass of every county in the District and the best negro speakers in the District have out appointments for speaking at various places. We guess the hope is to run Logan close enough up to Gen. Forney to give a Republican House an excuse for turning Gen. Forney out and seating him.

The men in this county who vote against the Democratic nominee for Congress this fall will not be permitted to participate in the Democratic primaries of the party at the next election. By the action of the State Democratic Convention, that is now good party law, and it is right. Men who vote against the nominees of their party ought to be ruled out when it comes to making nominations again.

The death of Maj. T. W. Francis, which has long been anticipated, occurred at the residence of Mayor Stevenson, in this place, Tuesday night. Major Francis was a man of large fortune and generous disposition, and was, perhaps, as extensively known throughout Alabama as any man in the State. In his last hours he had the consolation that religion gave, having united himself with the church some weeks ago. He leaves a devoted wife to mourn his loss. The tenderest sympathy of this community goes out to her in this her greatest bereavement.
